Golfing Green

Natural Turf Management

Robust, green turf is produced by good soil and good mowing, watering, and fertilizing practices. Healthy soil supports the development of resilient grass that is naturally resistant to weeds and pests.

Golf courses have recently begun working with environmental experts to explore eco-friendly, natural turf management methods. Good for the earth and good for human health, these green golfing initiatives are a welcome addition to traditional turf management methods.

